THE ASTOR SCANDAL REVIVED.

How Harry Vane Millbank Decided that the Injured Husband Could Not Fight a Duel.

The domestic troubles of Mr. and Mrs. J. Coleman Drayton are to be sired in the divorce court. Mr. Drayton began a suit for divorce on June 27, but the fact only leaked out to-day. Hallett Alsop Borrowe is named as the co-respondent, which is no much of a surprise after sively a comparatively short time ago. The papers are now on file in the New Jersey State Court of Chancery in Tren-

In fact the coolness manifested by certain prominent Catholic clergymen toward the Pope's representative led the Rev. Father Ducey to assert that priests who were supposed to represent the Archbishop had deliberately insulted the Abostolic delegate.

No pains were spared to call Mgr. Satolif's attertion to these slights, and accounts of them were even cabled to Rome it is said. It may be that Dr. Burtsell did not neglect to tell the Pope how his representative was received.

Now that by the direct order of the Pope Mgr. Satolif is practically Pope in America. Dr. Burtsell may deem it no longer incumbent on him to show ordinary couriesy to the Archbishop who certainly has not made his position in the church for the last four years a veryp leasant one.

In addition to the Rev. Pather Ducey there were other priests who demanded better treatment for the Pope's repsentative. Among them was the Rev. Stylessrer Malone, Regent of the University of the State of New York. If it be Dr. Burtsell's intention to fight Archbishop Corrigan from the start, it is not considered unlikely that he will find an ally as willing as he is nowerful in the person of the Rev. Pather Malone.

When the latter was a candidate before the State Legimanure for the office of Regent, Archbishop Corrigan opposed him so strongly that it was believed at one time that Father Malone would be defeated. He necured the coveted honor, however, despite the Archbishop.
